FORTY NINER COACHES

Lawrence T. "Buck" Shaw

HEAD COACH

They call him the "Silver Fox" and he certainly lived up to the nickname in 1951. Lawrence Timothy "Buck" Shaw heard that the experts were predicting a cellar berth for his club, especially after its dismal showing in 1950.

Ired and inspired, Buck mentored the 49ers into a second place tie in the National Conference, only a half game away from the champion Los Angeles Rams.

This season Buck has resumed a more pessimistic outlook because the same experts have forecast a possible NFL title for San Francisco: Bare facts should favor optimism, to-wit:

The 49ers went into training camp with 34 tried and true veterans. Like other clubs, many of their top rookies were grabbed by Uncle Sam. But Hurryin' Hugh McElhenny should supply that extra punch in the backfield and Bob Toneff has the talent to become a great lineman in pro ball.

The 49ers average slightly more than 25 years of age—and that's a very happy medium.

Biographically, Buck was born in the little town of Stuart, Iowa, near the turn of the century. He entered Creighton University as a freshman in 1918 but withdrew after one semester, then transferred to Notre Dame. He was rated as one of the greatest tackles ever to play for the immortal Knute Rockne, winning varsity letters in 1919-20-21.

Buck coached at North Carolina State and Nevada before going to Santa Clara in 1929 as chief assistant to Maurice (Clipper) Smith.

When Smith accepted a Villanova offer after the 1935 season, Buck was named head coach and immediately started compiling a brilliant record. His 1936-37 Bronco varsities received Sugar Bowl bids and defeated highly-favored Louisiana State on both occasions. Between 1936 and 1942 his teams rang up 47 victories against 10 losses and four ties.

Santa Clara suspended football during the war but Buck stayed on as an assistant in the physical training program for military students.

In the meantime, Anthony J. "Tony" Morabito, a Santa Clara alumnus, was making plans for San Francisco's debut in professional football. Buck agreed to coach Morabito's team, which did not begin operations in the All-America Conference until 1946.

While he was awaiting his 49er tasks, Buck accepted a temporary appointment with the University of California in 1945. His undermanned Bears won four games, lost five and tied one.

In the four years of the All-America Conference, the 49ers captured 38 wins against 14 losses and two ties. They were perennial "bridesmaids" to the Cleveland Browns. It is significant that the Browns took their worst beating in history, 56 to 28, from the 49ers in 1949.

When San Francisco joined the NFL in 1950, hopes rode high for a successful campaign. But the overall result was a disastrous 3-9 record. The usually patient and soft-spoken Shaw was a hard task-master in the '51 training camp. The 49ers roared through to a 7-4-1 mark. Two of their defeats were by seven points; the other two by six. A 10-10 deadlock with the tailend New York Yanks prevented the club from tying the Rams for the National Conference crown.

Buck and Mrs. Marge Shaw reside at Atherton, Calif., 30 miles south of San Francisco. They have two married daughters.

James Wilmer "Jim" Lawson

ASSISTANT COACH

Forty Niner players call Jim the "Old Pro." In the mid-1920's he played for the Jacksonville, Fla., team in the American Football League and later barnstormed with Red Grange's New York Yankees.

Jim earned All-America recognition as a slashing end at Stanford in Pop Warner's 1922-23-24 era. He wound up his collegiate career by starring against Notre Dame in the Rose Bowl classic of Jan. 1, 1925.

He returned to his alma mater as an assistant coach in 1932, serving under Warner, Claude (Tiny) Thornhill and Clark Shaughnessy. Jim was named head coach for the 1942 season but entered the U.S. Navy as a lieutenant. After duty at St. Mary's Pre-Flight School, he finally wangled a combat job and saw action in the Western Pacific aboard the USS West Virginia.

When Buck Shaw took over the 49ers in 1946, his first choice as an assistant was Jim Lawson. They've been working together since.

Jim and Mrs. Lawson live in Palo Alto, Calif., where he operates a cleaning plant in the off-season. They have two grown sons.

John Phillip "Phil" Bengtson

ASSISTANT COACH

Ask any member of the 49er organization and he'll tell you it was a lucky day for the club when Phil Bengtson signed a contract as line coach. He turned out a forward wall last year that was among the toughest in the league.

A native of St. Paul, Minn., Phil was an All-America tackle at the University of Minnesota in 1933-34. From 1935 through 1939 he was an assistant coach at Missouri. He came west with Clark Shaughnessy in 1940 and helped turn out the "modern" T-formation team at Stanford that went through undefeated and whipped Nebraska in the Rose Bowl.

After the 1941 season, Phil joined the Navy and was stationed at Iowa Pre-Flight School. Later he served on aircraft carriers in the Pacific and was discharged in 1945 as a lieutenant commander.

The tall man from St. Paul was Marchy Schwartz's No. 1 aide at Stanford from 1946 through 1950. When Chuck Taylor, assistant 49er coach, was named head man at Stanford, a neat "trade" brought Bengtson to the pros as his replacement.

Phil and Mrs. Bengtson live in Menlo Park, Calif. They have four children—Jay, 9; Bobbie, 6; Betty, 4, and Brian, 2.

Norman P. "Red" Strader

ASSISTANT COACH AND CHIEF SCOUT

Red Strader is home—and the 49ers hope he's here to stay.

Red was St. Mary's first All-American back in 1924 when he lugged the leather for the Galloping Gaels and caught the eye of Walter Camp. A native of Newton, N.J., where he was born in 1904, he was only six months old when his family settled in Ceres, Calif.

Red was an all-around athlete in college and his catching talents in baseball brought him a contract with the St. Louis Browns. In 1926-27 he was in pro football with the Chicago Bulls and Chicago Cardinals.

After coaching at Regis College in Denver from 1928 through 1931, Red returned to St. Mary's as an assistant to E. P. "Slip" Madigan in 1932. He became head coach in 1940. He served in the Navy during World War II and emerged with the rank of lieutenant commander.

Red was backfield coach of the New York Yankees from 1946 until he was appointed to the top spot early in the 1948 season. He was out of the game because of illness in 1951 but joined the 49ers last January as an assistant and chief scout. His scouting reports already have given the club a tremendous head start on its 1953 prospects.
